Engineering Team TBR June 14 Press Release

Greenpower
INSPIRING ENGINEERS

Rookie Racers Triumph!

The Tor Bridge High Engineering team returned triumphant on Thursday having successfully taken the chequered flag at the end of two gruelling endurance races at the South West round of the Greenpower Racing Formula 24 Challenge. The event at Newquay Airport is the biggest regional round of this superb national engineering green energy project and the team have made a fantastic effort to build a car in time for the race as newcomers in 2014. This is the start of a long term STEM project which aims to inspire our future engineers and support recruitment into technical and scientific careers. Race day was an eventful affair with many cars suffering breakdowns despite perfect weather conditions, but we are pleased to say that our car performed faultlessly despite some low bodywork being torn off at speed by the large 'cats eyes' on the airport runways! We were personally praised by the event organiser Jeremy Way for our fantastic result reaching the finish in our first event. Well done to Team TBR!

A big thanks to all our supporters and sponsors!
